Current Position

Bradford L. Bright is a Vice President in the Dallas office of Veritas Advisory Group, Inc. and a founding member of the firm.

Professional Experience

Mr. Bright is a nationally recognized expert in the construction industry with over twenty-five years experience in contract administration, scheduling, estimating, accounting, auditing, and consulting. Mr. Bright has provided assistance to clients on such issues as delay, disruption, proper construction management, defective work, surety bond claims, termination, general accounting and auditing issues, and damages. Encompassing a wide variety of projects, his endeavors have included power plants, pipelines, airports, petrochemical facilities, mass transit, sports arenas, prisons, hospitals, wastewater treatment plants, high-rise office buildings, theme parks, and road construction. Mr. Bright has rendered expert testimony regarding construction matters in state and federal courts, as well as in domestic and international arbitration proceedings.

In addition to construction services, Mr. Bright has managed a variety of other commercial matters involving such issues as breach of contract, investment fraud, embezzlement, bankruptcy, franchise disputes, and loss of profit issues. His engagements have spanned a variety of business interests including manufacturing, product distribution, cable television, real estate, shipping, and construction. Mr. Bright has prepared and evaluated numerous economic models for the purposes of analyzing and quantifying damages related to these disputes. Mr. Bright has rendered testimony as an expert on economic damages in both state and federal courts, as well as in arbitration proceedings.

Prior to Veritas, Mr. Bright was a director with Peterson Barrington, and a founding partner of The Barrington Consulting Group. Additionally, he has held positions as a consultant with Peterson & Co. and with Austin Industries.

Educational Background

Mr. Bright received his Bachelor of Science degree in Construction Engineering from Pittsburg State University and his Master of Business Administration from the University of Dallas. He is a member of the Institute of Management Accountants, the Associated General Contractors of America, and the American Society of Mechanical Engineers.
